

Buckeye Blake

Buckeye Blake grew up on the rodeo circuit. His father was a rodeo rider. Now, Blake is one of the best-known artists in and of the West. During the fall of 1993, at the Buffalo Bill Historical Center in Cody, Wyoming, his work was the subject of the first one-man show given by a living artist since 1986.

Exhibition curator Sarah Boehme says Blake “conveys a sense of timelessness to show that the Old West was never completely left behind.”

Fans of Blake’s work include Thomas McGuane and businessmen-ranchers Dan Lufkin, James Taggart and Herbert Allen. Limited edition prints and posters by Buckeye Black are also available.
