Michael was born on December 5, 1951 in Detroit, Michigan. His father, a sergeant for the Detroit police Department, served as a role model for dignity and caring. His mother, a nurse, had the love and patience to raise four boys.

Following high school, Michael set a course for himself in Architecture at Lawrence Institute of Technology. While there, he found he had an aptitude for mathematics and a talent for painting. Encouraged by his painting instructors, he pursued an arts program at Mercy College in Detroit. With a minor in mathematics he merged these dual studies into a teaching career, of which he is now retired.

He currently lives in Tucson, Arizona. His other interests include travel, music tennis and bird hunting. Michael began his professional art career at Rosequist Gallery in Tucson. Throughout his career he has participated in numerous group and one man shows around the west.

Michael is an artist member of the Mountain Oyster Club and has shown in their fall show for over twenty years. Michael was chosen to be the artist for the Los Charros Del Desierto ride in 2000. He was named "Artist of the Year" in 2001 by the Friends of Western Art. Michael is currently represented by Settlers West Gallery in Tucson.
